

Biography

Takashi Kubo, MD, PhD is an Interventional Cardiologist at Tokyo Medical University, Hachioji Medical Center, Tokyo, Japan. Dr. Kubo obtained his cardiology specialist training in Cardiovascular Research Foundation / Columbia University Medical Center, New York, USA. Dr. Kubo's areas of expertise include coronary intervention; and invasive coronary imaging and physiology. Dr. Kubo works in collaboration with Korean Society of Interventional Cardiology and serves as an international faculty member for the Korean Cardiovascular Conferences including TCTAP, K-Imaging, GICS, ACT, SCI, ENCORE.

Membership

Japanese Circulation Society (Faculty, FJCS)

Japanese College of Cardiology (Faculty, FJCC)

Japanese Cardiovascular Intervention and Therapeutics: CVIT (Faculty)

Asian Pacific Society of Cardiology: APSC (Faculty, FAPSC)

Asian Interventional Cardiovascular Therapeutics: AICT-Asia PCR (Faculty)

Journal of American College of Cardiology-Asia (Associate editor)

Transcatheter Cardiovascular Therapeutics USA: TCT (Faculty)

Euro PCR (Faculty)

European Heart Association (FESC)